POLICE ARREST WOMAN FOR ABUSING BABY GOAT

On Saturday, Vacaville Police arrested a woman after she allegedly abused a baby goat, pouring beer down its throat and kicking the defenseless animal.

On Saturday, May 11, 2013 police dispatch received several calls from residents regarding a woman who was seen mistreating a baby goat. It was reported that citizens intervened and took the goat from the woman, who ran away. Several other citizens chased the suspect until the police arrived.

Police learned that S-Lillian Wohn, 23, a transient, had been in possession of a baby goat and was observed by witnesses dropping, kicking and throwing the baby goat to the ground. S-Wohn was also observed grabbing the baby goat by its front legs and twirling it around. S-Wohn was then seen pouring beer into the baby goat's mouth. Humane Animal Services responded and took control of the baby goat, which was believed to have been born within the last 48 hours.

Officers detained and subsequently arrested Wohn, who was booked into Solano County Jail. Anyone who may have information regarding this case should contact Officer Frank Piro at (707) 449-5200.
